

Leslie Carruth, MBA

Leslie Carruth, Associate Vice Chancellor in The University of Texas System Office of Health Affairs, focuses on collaborations among the UT health institutions, the new medical schools, and affiliated partners to define, measure, and improve health care value in terms of health outcomes and care costs. Areas of interest include innovative value-based delivery and payment models, integrated health system development, coverage models, risk tolerance, health data analytics, and population health management. She also supports UT collaborative efforts in the health research arena including clinical trials administration, biobanking, and core research laboratory facilities. Leslie has applied her expertise in process improvement and the development of meaningful financial and operational feedback to drive mission-focused results through various career experiences including People's Community Clinic CFO, Seton Healthcare finance director, finance/operations director for Medicaid/CHIP HMOs at Texas Health & Human Services Commission, and planning/budgeting manager for a workers' comp insurance company. Leslie earned a BA in the Plan II Honors Program and an MBA at the University of Texas at Austin.
